CLASS POEM

Classmates, I behold a gorgeous rainbow,
Flung against a cloud-flecked sky;
It spans across the lofty heavens:
It dips so low and lifts so high-
It dips and drips its glory;
In pastel rays it tells its story.

The rainbow earthward turns so kindly,
On us, the seniors here below:
It sprays us all with confidence,
And gives us an inner glow.
Each color flashes down upon us
Through the clouds of misty haze.
Methinks it spreads its mantle
To shower us with hope and goodly praise.

The violet is seems to chase away our troubles
And quiet all our alarms;
The orange is dropping a pot of gold
Into our open arms;
The indigo is dishing out its wisdom
With silver spoon;
The blue lets fall its magic rays
Lifting, transporting us over the moon.

The red is dressing us in tailored suits
And fine velvet gowns;
The yellow flings out its golden coaches
To ride us about the towns;

And the green is growing envious,
And outdoing all the rest:
It's giving us hope and courage
For all our lives to do our best.

So, as seniors, out in life we go,
Blessed by the sun and cloud and bow;
This, friends, is our true story--
The rainbow dips to shower us with glory.

PROPHECY

Seniors, I have been standing out here in this field alone for a long time, and I have had time to watch the heavens, I have gazed at the church steeples etched against the sky; I have watched the planes and the birds sailing among the fleecy clouds; I have watched the leaves in the wind; and I have seen the hugh pages of the pictures framed in the sky, so I have been able to follow your future lives.

Paul, as president of the senior class you have been a sky pilot, but that will not be your occupation in life. I see you beneath the dome of our national capitol. You are a junior senator from your state and you have made great contributions to your nation and state. With you are two efficient stenographers, Jo Ann and Vallie Jewel. They enjoy life in the nation's first city. Also, I see June acting as the social secretary for the president's wife.

Kenneth, I see the top of a skyscraper in your life. Yes, I see you and Donald at your desks. You are the owners of this big office building as well as architects of it. In your architectural business you have many assistants: Hugh, Charles and J. B. are all prominent in designing hospitals and schools.

Now, I see a great plane as it wings its way westard. Delano and Wendell are no doubt in that plane as they are transcontinental pilots between the United States and South America. They are looking after their wives, Annette and Imogene. And Marie is their stewardess.

I understand they occasionally take with them on their trips friends who also have business abroad, Roy and R.J. They are buyers for Macy's in New York. And movie magnates, Hershell and Fred also travel in their planes to and from New York. Quite often the actresses Lorena and Rachel travel with them.

And speaking of actresses, I see the six noted dancers, Frances, Mary Lou, Lorene, and Jo Frances. They are in the famous ballet, THE SILVER LINNING, now on the stage in person on Broadway.

And there is a great hospital. Drs. Jesse Glenn and Jasper are in the operating room. Both are capable and distinguished surgeons. In this hospital are also efficient nurses, Jessie Mae and Louie: Ivagene is superintendent of nurses.

Jay Lee is a politician and lawyer. He is going to be the next governor of North Carolina, according to report. Oh, yes, guess who is going to be first lady? Why Lucille of course.

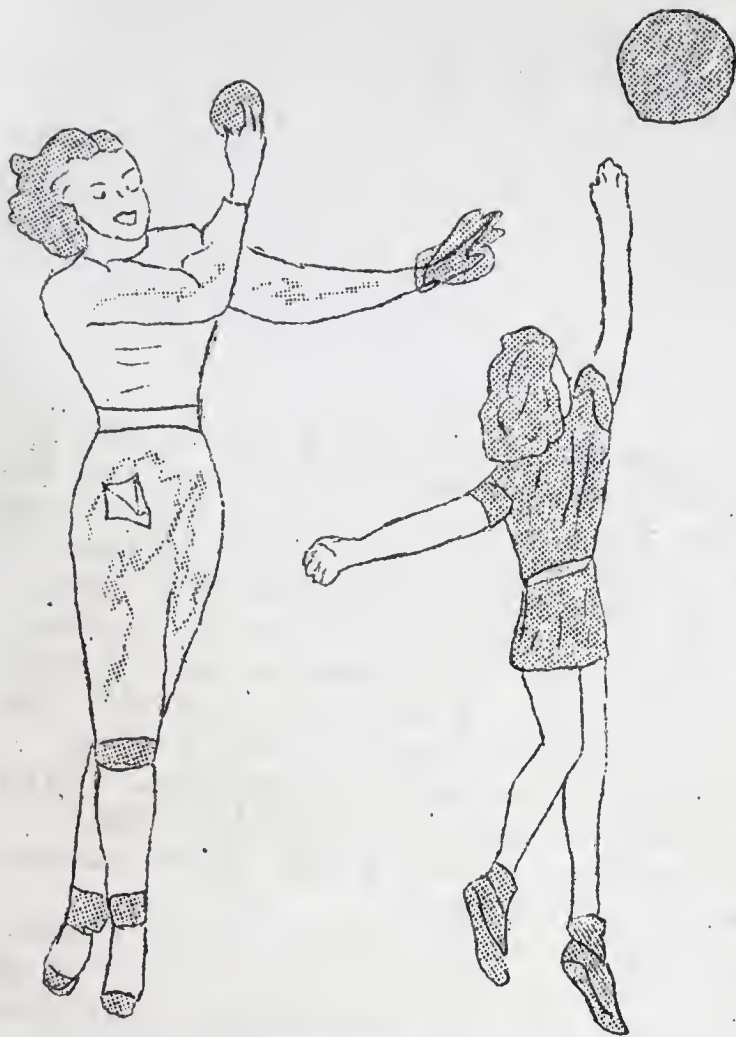

And I see the top of a silo at a dude ranch in the west. I find the owners are J. C. and Annie Lou. I understand they have one of the most prosperous places in all the west.

There is a tall bank building with Tommy as the bank president and Peggy the vice-president. The tellers are Clarine and Lola Mae. Cora and Kathleen are working in the office of the supreme court, and Betsy is a stenographer for a judge of the circuit court.

Good luck, seniors, all, have your dreams and always look for the silver lining.

Jay Lee is a politician and lawyer. He is going to be the next governor of North Carolina, according to report. Oh, yes, guess who is going to be first lady? Why Lucille of course.

And I see the top of a silo at a dude ranch in the west. I find the owners are J. C. and Annie Lou. I understand they have one of the most prosperous places in all the west.

There is a tall bank building with Tommy as the bank president and Peggy the vice-president. The tellers are Clarine and Lola Mae. Cora and Kathleen are working in the office of the supreme court, and Betsy is a stenographer for a judge of the circuit court.

Good luck, seniors, all, have your dreams and always look for the silver lining.
